Chapter 1 by Feyre Archeron

When I woke up to the sound of screams, my head was spinning. I rolled out of bed, threw clothes on, and ran outside to see what the commotion was about. When I got outside there was people scampering all over the place screaming in horror. Then I ran towards the direction everybody was running away from. I reached the end of the block when I saw a gigantic white figure that was taller than a skyscraper, and was probably 5 miles away.

But it was coming, and it was coming real fast. I ran back home as fast as I could, I ended up running into some other people that were running for their lives, and I was knocked over into a street light and passed out. When I woke I was in the back of a van with people screaming at each other. When they finally realized that I was awake they immediately stopped. I asked them where I was and who they were.

I was told that their names were Kim and Todd and that they found me passed out on the ground. They said they didn't want to leave me there, so they picked me up after they realized that I had a pulse. They said that they thought that I was about 18 and that I was alone, and that I had no family in sight. When I decided to lay back down in the back of the car and go back to sleep, they started talking loudly again.

When I woke up the next morning we were at the San Francisco Bay, sitting off to the side were Kim and Todd. When I got out of the car, I walked right up to them and plopped on the ground. I asked them why we weren't driving away from this place because of the big gigantic egg that was coming after the whole city. They simply said "Just My Child, Just Wait."
